13

Vehicle Identification and Emission Ratings

© 2013 Pearson Higher Education, Inc.
Pearson Prentice Hall - Upper Saddle River, NJ 07458

FIGURE 13.1 Typical vehicle identification number (VIN) as viewed through the windshield.

© 2013 Pearson Higher Education, Inc.
Pearson Prentice Hall - Upper Saddle River, NJ 07458

FIGURE 13.2 A VECI label on a 2008 Ford.

© 2013 Pearson Higher Education, Inc.
Pearson Prentice Hall - Upper Saddle River, NJ 07458

13 VEHICLE IDENTIFICATION AND EMISSION RATINGS

FIGURE 13.3 The underhood decal showing that this Lexus RX-330 meets both national (Tier 2; BIN 5) and California LEV-II (ULEV) regulation standards.

© 2013 Pearson Higher Education, Inc.
Pearson Prentice Hall - Upper Saddle River, NJ 07458

13 VEHICLE IDENTIFICATION AND EMISSION RATINGS

FIGURE 13.4 A typical computer calibration sticker on the case of the controller. The information on the sticker is often needed when ordering parts or a replacement controller.

© 2013 Pearson Higher Education, Inc.
Pearson Prentice Hall - Upper Saddle River, NJ 07458

13 VEHICLE IDENTIFICATION AND EMISSION RATINGS

FIGURE 13.5 Engine block identification number cast into the block is used for identification.

© 2013 Pearson Higher Education, Inc.
Pearson Prentice Hall - Upper Saddle River, NJ 07458