

Wheels: A Springfield reader writes, “I have a 2003 Ford sports trac truck and for some reason a squirrel or 2 have decided to build nests in my truck. I have already had the truck towed and cleaned out at a cost, but they keep coming back. I just cleaned out a new nest I found this morning and there are nuts in the truck that I cannot reach. I do not have a garage, only a carport. Do you know of any way to keep the squirrels out of my truck?”

Halderman: These animals are a problem and the only thing I can think of to help keep them out is to move any food source, such as dog food, as far away as possible. To keep them from getting into the air filter, put screen wire over the openings.
